How are you doing? My name's Mr. Cordell, Simon Cordell, and I'm represented on behalf of your solicitor firm. And right now I believe that Mr. Ronak Ahmed is in charge of my case. He's the case handler. Okay. Hold on. Let me see if I can put you through.

Hello, how you doing? Is that Ronak?

Yeah, how you doing? I'm a bit better with the news that you've brought to me, but I'm not truly satisfied with it. To be honest, I can prove that the 58 claims that are in the processional order are completely forged. I can prove when they were forged, when I weren't in the house, and I'm not happy for a settlement under these grounds, under the grounds that I haven't been out of trouble, sort of thing. Even if we did go to court, legal aid's granted right now, and at the other end, so no matter what your solicitor firm's going to...

Yeah, but if we did accept the settlement, legal aid would be terminated.

No, no, no. Legal aid would be terminated. When they find out that there is an offer made, they'll say that it's not worth... They won't carry on funding the case. Legal Aid won't continue fundering my case under the grounds that I'm still being labelled as a perpetrator rather than being granted as innocent. I can contact Legal Aid right now and Legal Aid has agreed with me and in my emails that until my innocence has been proven, this has been filed four or five times now, a malicious process alone. I'm not happy...

Go on, I understand what you're saying. Well, you're labelled as a paedophile, perpetrator, whatever. If your home's not at risk at this present moment, they won't continue funding it. So they'll refuse funding. You can carry on the case, but there'll be no legal aid. So what you're saying is I can privately continue to sue and I don't have to accept, but you as my solicitor, can you in their finger accept that I don't accept the terms and the grants which they want to settle on?

Yeah, no, I can tell you that, but if your mother just emails me back and says in one sentence that she refuses, that you refuse the offer that they want to discontinue, to you the case if your mother gets emails back and says that you refuse to offer then that's all I need to hear from her you ok because she was just writing to you something along them lines right now I believe No, no, no, no. I've received this long email, 500 words email. I don't need something like that because that's not really relevant. They want to pursue the case for the lack of recent incidents, not for the fact that I haven't done these things. So now they're going to make me live next to these people who have maliciously made stories up about me for the rest of my life, violated my home and my privacy. If you want to carry on the case... Yeah, I do, 100%. 100%. And I'm... I've been accused of something and I want I have my right to the day in court against You declined the offer made Yeah, because I've got the insurance policies here and I'm writing to the insurance companies once this is over for malicious processing for them finding the rest of it. And them saying that I've done nothing wrong over this time and that's why they're dropping it, that's not really a valid reason for the sufferings. No, they haven't said that. They've just said that there's been no recent incident. So if you could get your mother to email me back and just say that you declined their offer to withdraw the case. Under the terms of what they're stating? No, just say that you declined the terms of their offer. Yeah, but it's obviously got a bit... I'm not somebody that will free write like that or tell my mother to free write like that. If I'm going to be explaining something to somebody, I'll tell them why I'm explaining them not to do that. No, no, that email is just for our record. It's not for anyone else. It's not going anywhere else. My mum already sent me a...

Because it's very cold-hearted when somebody else later on, say you leave the firm or somebody else leaves the firm, you understand this bit of information that we're talking and the reasons to why. Now, you're going to make me just write a blunt short letter. Can you stop talking so much? Because I'm trying to explain something to you. Once the legal aid is terminated, then we will close our files. That's basically how it works. I can appreciate that. I can appreciate that. Yeah, of course. It's illegal what's... I don't understand why they have to complicate. It's not that. It's just that solicitor are supposed to have my best interests at heart. I think that you... If someone had done this to you, yeah, because there's 15,000 pages that Enfield Council and Lemmy have wrote in my name. My name didn't have no names in it. I could go and get job references and everything in it. Now, they've not wrote 15,000 pages in my name. Now, you were telling me, as my solicitor, we're going to let them get away with it when I can prove that they've maliciously frauded it or weren't in my house or nothing. I want to go for court. I want... I want to get them up on the court. I want you to get me a good barrister. You've already wasted my time in taking so long to deal with it and not notice that it's here. You should have got the case dropped time ago, to be quite honest. But you've never done that. We're so many months into it now because of the way you've handled it all. The way you've handled it and your firm's handled my case. You're going to take money for it at the end of it. Everyone's taking money here and you've all ruined my life. And you're supposed to be the person that's telling me about hearsay applications.
