Here's the speaker-separated version, with the obvious transcription errors cleaned into English where possible, while keeping the wording and meaning as close to the original as possible.

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
Furious, I forgot the phone then.
Hello, how are you doing?
Is it possible to speak to DC Razak, please?

Speaker 1:
Who, sorry?

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
I think it's DC Razak.

Speaker 1:
Who's calling?
He's not at the desk right now. I'll see if he's in the office.

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
Mr Cordell.
Or even if it's possible to speak to his line manager.
Who is his line manager?

Speaker 1:
Hold on a second, let me find that for you.

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
Oh, thank you.

Speaker 1 (DS Sharp):
Hello.

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
Hello, how are you doing, DS Sharp?
It's Mr Cordell speaking.

Speaker 1 (DS Sharp):
How can I help you?

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
May I ask if you have any involvement in my caseload at present that's in Wood Green Police Station?
You're the supervisor for the case, how are you doing?

Speaker 1 (DS Sharp):
Yeah.

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
I've got a few concerns about this case.
The case is that right now you're trying to put an application...
Someone has put a call for service, which is Lemmy, a council official.
While he was at work, he's accusing me of threats to kill.
I understand that threats to kill is a non-custodial sentence and that it's of the...

Speaker 1 (DS Sharp):
That's not the case.
Threats to kill is not necessarily a non-custodial sentence.

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
Okay, may I say something to you, sir?
A couple of weeks ago I was arrested for the same accusations in your police station.
I went to court and I won the case in court.
I've got the case papers here for threats to kill in that police station.

Speaker 1 (DS Sharp):
What can I do for you today?

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
This is what I'm trying to explain to you.
Because you grade your priorities as a police officer.
You have grade E, grade so-and-so, and you're a DC, so you would understand how you prioritise your caseloads.

Speaker 1 (DS Sharp):
I'm a DS.

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
Oh dear, yes.
So now what I'm trying to explain to you, sir, is that a little while ago, before this case happened, it's the same case.
It's just a continuation.
This is the backlash of what's going on that you're dealing with.
I've been writing a diary since 2006.
Every day I've done this diary.
I've kept every email and every text that every government official has sent to me and my mother.
We sent the council and the police over 100 emails from 2014 to 2016 explaining that I was getting assaulted in my house.
I took video evidence.
I took over ten witness statements from people in my house while this was happening.
I've got over one hundred videos from my house now.
Any person that sees them would understand what was done to me.

Now I've been writing to Lemmy and all the rest of his teams, Rob Leek, the executive director, Joanne Ryan, and everyone has been emailing each other between these emails.

Speaker 1 (DS Sharp):
Who are these people?

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
Rob Leek is the Executive Director of Enfield Civic Centre.
He's on more money than the Prime Minister.
If you put Rob Leek into Google you'll see his photograph.
You'll see him standing in front of a large building they were developing around 2015.
How this initially started was that I was arrested for a burglary allegation.

Speaker 1 (DS Sharp):
Mr Cordell, I'm just going to interrupt you there because I'm extremely busy.

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
Yes, I'm explaining to you, sir.
Sir, I'm recording this conversation.
I'm being held hostage in my house right now because of police officers' fraudulent activities.
It takes the council and the police together to make an application for an ASBO.
They both went to the Civic Centre.
On the third page it says they had to do this under the Criminal Evidence Act.
They forged that ASBO because all the timestamps in the call centre go backwards.
CAD 500 happens at 2 o'clock and CAD 565 happens at 1 o'clock.
This happens throughout the paperwork.
Throughout all of the CAD numbers and records.
On every building they admit there were statutory notices on the doors and that's why nobody was arrested.
What initially happened was that somebody pushed for this to happen.
Jane Johnson, the Borough Commander, was involved.
I've got recordings of phone calls saying:
"We're putting Jane Johnson into protection because of you."
"You've upset our commanding officer."
I've got all of these recordings.
They're all transcribed.
They're not just on my computer.
They've been passed to my family and to other people.
We've shown the paperwork to retired police officers online and they're shocked by what is happening.

Speaker 1 (DS Sharp):
Can I speak for a moment?

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
Yes, of course you can, sir.

Speaker 1 (DS Sharp):
My understanding is that there have been a number of difficulties and disputes involving yourself and council officials.
Our job here is only to investigate the allegation that has been made.

Speaker 2 (Mr Cordell):
No.
May I say something?
Under the Police Reform Act and the principles the police were founded upon, your organisation has a duty to protect people.
If I tell you somebody is being raped somewhere, you would have to reassess your priorities and attend to the more serious matter.
Now I'm telling you that I have been abused by these people and I've got evidence.
I've been phoning your police station since 2014.
I've recorded around 100 phone calls.
Nobody would come and take a statement from me.
I've got seven years of records.
Section 63 is for outdoor events only.
For the organisation of illegal raves, unless trespass has taken place.
I went to court and I have the transcripts.
In court they could not prove illegality.
My barrister made submissions on this.
I'm holding seven years of evidence.
I'm not shouting.
I'm tongue-tied.
It's my disability.
I'm under pressure when speaking.
What they've done falls under Article 3 of my Human Rights.
The right not to be subjected to degrading treatment or severe physical or mental suffering.
What has happened to me amounts to torture.
Torture is one of the most serious offences.
These people are sitting in their property using fixtures from their flooring and repeatedly banging on the floor.
The day I was released from your police station, I came home and they were chasing me around my house.
Bang. Bang.
If I played the video to you now, you would see it.
What they're doing in this house is not a joke.
The council have allowed it because they've pushed a sex scandal using mine and Shannon's names.
A sex scandal to cover up the fact that the timestamps in the call centre records don't add up.
To cover up the signatures and paperwork.
So you've created a sex scandal involving me and Shannon.
Now if you look online...
Listen to this, sir.

Listen.
Write this one thing down.
Write this one thing down with a pen and paper.
Then you'll understand how much trouble you're in.
Check this online.
